YOUNG GIRL IS VICTIM OF AUTO ON BEACH ROAD AT RECREATION CAMP

Mabel Creason, of New Orleans, McDonough Freshman, Killed Outright By Passing Auto in Front of Camp Onward, Where She Was Visiting.

Mabel Creason, aged 14, of 741 Esplanade avenue, New Orleans, La., a freshman at the John McDonough Girls' High School of that city, was killed when she was struck by an automobile Saturday, and was buried Sunday afternoon in St. Vincent de Paul cemetery, New Orleans.

The girl was staying at Camp Onward, the summer camp of Kingsley House, between Waveland and Bay St. Louis. She was sitting with other girls on the beach opposite the camp when the luncheon bell rang at 12:45 p. m., Saturday. The girls started across the road to their camp and the Creason girl was struck by an automobile said to be driven by Mrs. August E. Flashpoller, New Orleans.

On the porch at the time was Billie Creason, Mabel's younger sister, who had returned to the camp earlier in the day and was waiting for the others. "We heard a noise, but thought it was just some fireworks, since it was the Fourth of July," Billie said. "Then Vera Saia and Marie Lalli came running crying, 'It's Mabel!' The lady had run up the road a little bit, and she came back then, but it was too late."

Mabel is survived by her mother, who is employed at the Monteleone coffee shop, New Orleans, her sister and five aunts and an uncle, all living out of the state. Her father is dead.

She was a native of Hamburg, Arkansas, and came to New Orleans with her mother and sister about four years ago. This was her fourth summer at the camp, the girl's mother said.

"She'd been working hard all year," she said. She said she wanted to finish school soon so she could help me. At first she wanted to be a teacher, but she decided the preparation would take too long, so she made up her mind to take up commercial work."

The remains were taken in charge of Fahey's Burial firm and shipped to New Orleans on train No. 6 Monday morning. It was first planned to await the arrival of a brother from Arkansas, but this was changed later.

Where the girl's body was thrown in the air and crushed to death there remained a great spot of blood on the street surface, a grawsome sight to passersby.

The great tragedy, for it was nothing less, threw a damper on the Fourth of July celebration in Bay St. Louis, particularly at Camp Onward where the young lady had been visiting and was exceedingly popular.

COLLECT BOUNTY ON BEAKS

Board of Supervisors Pay 15 Cents On Approximately Four Thousand Gar Beaks.

Approximately four thousand beaks had been submitted in a report to the Board of Supervisors Monday morning at the opening day of the July board meeting for the 15 cent bounty paid by the board for each gar beak. This bounty was offered to rid the fresh waters of the county of gars which destroy fish.

The fishermen catching the 4,000 gars received approximately $600 for the bounty. The court house at Bay St. Louis was thronged by fishermen from all parts of the county interested in this bounty payment.

Reports had been made to Game Warden Albert Jones, who, in turn, verified the catches and made returns to the Board. It is hoped in time to remove from the fresh waters of Hancock county this great menace of the gar fish eating all edible fish.

Delightful Dance Promised For Saturday Night at Bay-Waveland Clubhouse

Lovers of the dance and amusement will find much to look forward to when the regular Saturday night dance will be given at the Bay-Waveland Yacht club building on the Beach Front. Misses Lacoste and Glover, entertainers managers of the Bay Night Club, will be the featured attraction.

DELEGATION WOMEN APPEARS BEFORE HANCOCK CO. SUPERVISORS

Headed by Mrs. Luter, Asks That Office of Demonstration Agent Be Re-Established.

A delegation of women from Hancock county appeared Monday morning before the Board of Supervisors in this city at their regular monthly meeting in the interest of the subject of re-establishing the office of county demonstration agent, formerly filled by Miss Odorn as agent.

It was pointed out that since the office was abolished, the younger women were practically without a leader and the girls without that organization that made for them the work clear and systemized every effort; they said it had proven a distinct loss to the women of the county; that as an economic measure, particularly at this particular time, it was sorely felt that a void was now existing that could not be filled unless the office was again established—either in part or whole.

Mrs. Delta B. Luter, district demonstration agent, South Mississippi, with headquarters at Jackson, headed the delegation, and made the introductory address. She was followed by Mrs. Otto Rester and Mrs. Luther Lee. Others active in the interview were Mrs. James Rester and Mrs. Spier, of Sellers.

President Cue told the delegation that the budget for such work would not be made until September and he felt sure at that time members of the Board would give the subject full and proper consideration.

Mrs. Luter said the committee was under the impression that such a budget was generally adopted at the July meeting and for that reason the committee had appeared, but even though they were early, she said, she felt the visit of the delegation would not prove in vain; that if the board saw the way clear, and all things considered, such relief as sought would be forthcoming, either as an emergency measure, part time or whole time.

The ladies were favorably impressed with their visit, Mrs. Luter said to the Echo reporter; that they appreciated the courtesy of the board's attention and time, which had been given them, and such consideration as they were seeking would come in due time.

An Appeal From Chamber of Commerce Against Speeding.

THE PEOPLE of the Coast are called on to use their individual and collective influence to keep down the public menace of speeding. This appeal comes through the secretary of the Bay St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, appealing to the membership of this body to create a public sentiment against excessive speeding on the beach highway especially. In no sense is it necessary to use unkind force to have such a condition come about. In no way is the Chamber of Commerce desirous of creating in the minds of the visiting public or tourist trade an unpleasant attitude, nor are the law enforcement officers asked to make it hard for the people who are driving at a rapid rate. Rather, the desire is to have people wish of their own free will and accord to follow the Coast example of driving moderately and with due regard for human life.

The Bay-Waveland section is an ideal resort area and public officers taking the wrong attitude about motorists may give it a "black eye" among the travelling public. This is not desired. But it is specifically wished some way to succeed in causing people to think, and then act thoughtfully, and not thoughtlessly drive hell-mell and cause loss of life and damage to property.

ED GALL.

THIS TAXPAYERS of Mississippi—a majority of whom cast their ballots for Theodore Bilbo for governor—may or may not know that when he entered office three and a half years ago that the bonded indebtedness of their State was only $15,290,750. At the present time the total obligations of the State reach the huge sum of $31,721,500, more than double the amount when he assumed office. And yet he is on a speech making tour of the State asking the people to vote for legislative candidates "friendly to my administration." That's what we call the quintessence of unadulterated nerve and gall.

WILL HELP RETURN OF PROSPERITY

AFTER several days of discussion of the terms of President Hoover's proposal for a "debt holiday," France at last accepted same just as laid down in the first note dispatched to the creditor nations. The payment by Germany of reparations as set out shortly after the World War was beyond her capacity to meet, and it was both a wise and bold stroke on the part of President Hoover to startle the world with his proposal that a cessation of payment for one year of that nation's obligations be set aside. With the exception of France every country to which Germany owed money readily assented. It is believed that such action will hasten a return to prosperity for the whole world.

WHERE IS THE MONEY COMING FROM?

THREE are candidates going up and down the State advocating free school books for every boy and girl enrolled in our public schools. Where is the money to come from? It would only mean additional taxation for the already over-burdened property owners, and the Echo does not believe the candidates favoring such a project will add many votes to the total they would receive if they did not advocate free books.

WON FAIR AND SQUARE.

The heavy weight fistic crown was securely placed on the head of Max Schmeling at Cleveland, Ohio, Friday night, when he scored a technical knockout over Young Stribling at the end of their 15-round fight. Of course there is more or less regret expressed that the title has gone to the German, though it is admitted on all sides that he won it fairly and squarely. Stribling put up a game fight, but early in the bout he realized that he was up against a better man.

TO SERVE THREE YEARS.

Rogers Caldwell, 41-year-old president of Caldwell & Co., nationally-known banking house of Nashville, was found guilty of fraudulent breach of trust by a criminal court jury which stipulated a maximum sentence of three years in the Tennessee penitentiary. The banking institution of which he was the head failed some months ago, and many millions of public funds were lost by the State.

SOMETHING TO SHOOT AT.

Around the world in eight days fifteen hours and fifty one minutes is the record which Wiley Post and Harold Gatty have set up for other daring aviators to shoot at. But it will not be long ere that record is smashed, there being no longer doubt or speculation as to what the future holds for aviation now in its infancy.

The natural gas pipe lines laid in Southeastern States during the past year represent an outlay of more than $36,000,000.

Mary Garden says women marry because they don't want to work—Los Angeles Examiner. Yes, and the majority of them find out very soon that they must work whether they want to or not.

George Bernard Shaw spoke a mouthful when he observed: "In politics there are three kinds of speakers—a statesman, an orator and a windbag." And of the latter there are more than a plenty.

The daily press on Sunday morning brought reports of 354 fatal accidents which occurred during the celebration of the "Glorious Fourth" throughout the country. That is pretty heavy toll to be exacted and tops all previous records.

Representative George S. Graham, chairman of the judiciary committee and the oldest member of the congress, is dead at the age of 81 years. His death cuts the Republican majority down to one and leaves the organization of the next house still more in doubt.

The physicians who have been attending Albert E. Smith, former secretary of the interior, under sentence to serve one year in the federal state prison on the side of the hill, and the local medical men, doctors seem to have come to the conclusion that he is a valuable old man.

CURSED WITH BLIGHT OF FACTIONALISM.

IN ORDER TO FORCE an adjournment of Tennessee's legislative session "sneezing powder" was blown into the air, but the effort failed to have the desired effect, as the lawmakers endured the annoyance and continued their labors.

Like Mississippi, Tennessee is cursed with the blight of factionalism and so long as that curse prevails, just so long will it retard the best interests and development of both commonwealths. The Jackson Clarion-Ledger commenting on the "sneezing powder" incident says:

Some disgraceful scenes were enacted in our own Legislature last year during consideration of impeachment charges. But tactics this foul were avoided.

Mississippians, considering malodorous official episodes at home, are in no position to throw stones at Tennessee. But, we voice the hope that both states, having suffered much in common from unscrupulous politicians in office, will succeed this year in cleaning house and re-establishing honesty and decency in public office.

In pursuing the newspapers published in every section of Mississippi, The Echo is of the opinion that the demand for a political "house-cleaning" prevails throughout the length and breadth of the State, the honest and patriotic citizenry having finally realized that a change must and shall come about if their beloved commonwealth is to be saved from ruin and chaos. The process of cleansing will extend from the highest to lowest of official positions, and the job to which the voters have set their hands and hearts will be one which will arouse the envy of the "Gold Dust Twins," so thorough will it be.

A CHANGE IN THE LAW MIGHT HELP

In an address before the Alabama bar association Mr. Walter Brower, a prominent attorney of Birmingham, asserted that "the almost nationwide disregard for truth and the solemnity of an oath has become a serious menace in the administration of justice." He attributes frequent perjury to two causes: "the disbelief in a hereafter and consequent disregard of an oath's solemnity and the lack of dignity and impressiveness with which court proceedings are conducted."

Perjury is an offense for which it is almost impossible to secure a conviction and a change in the laws should be made making it easier to bring those guilty of bearing false witness to punishment. A few convictions would go a long way toward deterring those who disregard their solemn oath, and there is scarcely a court in the country where perjury is not committed with impunity, but being an offense difficult to prove those guilty of swearing falsely escape prosecution because of that fact alone.

ANOTHER BLUNDER.

Not being a manufacturing State and having nothing in that line for export to other countries, Mississippians were of the opinion that enactment of the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill couldn't hurt them, but they were mistaken, as word comes from the Crystal Springs-Hazlehurst tomato growing district that the high duty imposed by Canada on tomatoes renders shipments across the line prohibitive and one of the best markets opened to the growers has been closed to them. As we predicted before the Smoot-Hawley tariff was adopted, America's best customers have retaliated by the adoption of tariffs of their own which have cut American export trade to almost nothing. Just another blunder chargeable to the administration of the Great Engineer domiciled in the White House.

PUTTING ON THE SOFT PEDAL.

Reports come from all sections of Mississippi that the efforts of candidates to arouse the people by appealing for support on factional lines is meeting with little encouragement and success. The enthusiasm and thunder of applause which in former campaigns greeted such appeals are sadly lacking, and the candidates who have sought to gain support through resorting to such tactics are now putting on the soft pedal. No better proof of the fact that the electorate of Mississippi is sick and tired of such appeals is needed and it will be further demonstrated when the primary election results are announced after August 4th.

CONTINUES ISSUING PARDONS.

Governor Bilbo continues to issue pardons and suspensions to convicts sent to the State penitentiary. Up to July 1st he had signed 1648 documents giving freedom to inmates of the penal institution. It is a very easy matter for the family and friends of a convict to circulate and get signatures to a petition for a pardon, and it is doubtful if the granting of clemency is given the examination and study it deserves except in few instances. Unless the penitentiary is to be depopulated it would be a good thing for the State if Theodore lost his fountain pen.

AND THEN THE FIREWORKS!

Few, indeed very few, newspapers in Mississippi are championing the candidates of the several men who are aspirants for the governorship. Editorial endorsement and support is noticeable by its absence—unlike anything of that sort we have seen in former campaigns. But just wait until after the first primary, when the crop of candidates has been thinned down to a stand—and then look out for the fireworks!

CAUSE FOR REJOICING.

On the blackmail plots are reported with alacrity in the daily press. No man or woman of wealth is immune from the designs of criminals whose dreams of death accomplish such ends. Thus the good Lord newspaper publishers were given a new opportunity to do their best for the world, as well as for themselves, in the publication of the various plots.

LOCAL SIDELIGHTS.

TOMATOES GROW BETTER
HERE THAN ELSEWHERE.

It has repeatedly been demonstrated what can be successfully grown in and around Bay St. Louis with little or no effort, save for intelligent and consistent application. Anything that will grow elsewhere will grow in Bay St. Louis, some things, perhaps, better than others, just as in all things and at other places.

Bay St. Louis soil is productive and with proper attention it is possible to successfully grow anything. This has been proven time and again. No man has more fully demonstrated this than J. N. Wisner. We well remember the many things he grew in about his thirteen acre estate, not forgetting Irish potatoes during the winter.

Tomatoes grow particularly well in this section. W. A. McDonald, successful local business man, whose hobby and recreation is a truck garden at home just now is growing the largest and best flavored tomatoes one has seen around here for a long time. In addition to various varieties of truck, each and every season, Major McDonald's tomatoes easily take the prize. This should be both an incentive and example for others who might do likewise, combining healthful exercise with recreation and pleasure to say nothing of the possible profits. *

COAST ENJOYS OVERFLOWING
WEEK-END PROSPERITY.

Losing none of its former popularity with the masses from New Orleans and up State, the Mississippi Coast on last week-end, Fourth of July, enjoyed the visit and stay of an influx of people the like of which is seldom seen here. There were visitors from all sections. Early Friday afternoon until Sunday morning the crowding surged in from the west and east and northern portions adjacent to the Coast, from many points over Louisiana, Mobile and as far north as Memphis, Tenn.

By Saturday night and Sunday forenoon every available room on the Coast was occupied; every hotel and other like places filled to capacity. It was conservatively estimated, by knowing ones, that over five thousand automobiles crossed the Bay St. Louis bridge during the Saturday-Sunday period. That the Mississippi Coast still holds its claim on the public cannot be doubted; it has lost none of its charm to the crowds and fascination to the individual. The salt water bathing from the tides of both gulf and ocean, the salt-laden and balmy breezes from the waters, will ever attract and hold. Then there are the many hard-surfaced roads and paths and by-paths through the piney woods, and the scenic beauty of the coastal line, that lure and compel. For those whose predilection run to boating and fishing there is added attraction.

It is well known the Mississippi Coast the past five-year period has practically been built like overnight. Many hotels and other places of like accommodation, modern and attractive, are ready to receive and to accommodate the throngs, to say nothing of innumerable tourist or auto camps that now dot the coast. It is a great resort, a great playground for vacationists and others, too, who would seek rest and relaxation, and it is no wonder that the coast's popularity remains supreme.

BAY-WAVELAND DISTRICT IS EVER POPULAR.

In noting the unprecedented number of people who surged to the Gulf Coast the past week-end, it is noteworthy that both Bay St. Louis and Waveland and immediate territory received fully its share of the welcome visitors. Hotels, boarding houses and private homes had their full quota. Few places were without week-end guests. The Bay-Waveland district, due to its close proximity to New Orleans, the great source of supply, and its added charms, is appealing to the summer visitor, and there is no wonder that so many flock here. There is nothing to marvel about; it is simply a matter of sequence and of course.

The thousands of visitors who come out for the week-end well know how welcome they are to these shores. May their numbers increase and may they never fail to come this way. A cordial greeting awaits one and all.

TULANE APARTMENT
BUILDING TAKING SHAPE.

Rebuilding of the former Tulane Hotel, recently destroyed by fire into an apartment building, contributes added beauty to our beautiful coast line, and even though not quite finished already adds considerably to the buildings along the beach boulevard.

Constructed of stucco with Spanish roof tiles, the building presents a most picturesque and colorful appearance. Architects, Messrs. Smith & Norwood, of the Mississippi Gulf Coast, have designed a place that is both effective in appearance and of practical construction within. More buildings of this type will do more to add to and to the beauty of this section than anything else possibly could. It is this style of architecture that has beautified much of Southern California, Los Angeles, Santa Monica, San Diego and San Clemente, Palos Verdes and innumerable other places have received such stamp of distinguished architecture. Southern California has nothing on the Mississippi Gulf Coast, but the artistic work of man has brought out the majority of buildings in such individual and outstanding lines and color that has made for California so much of its vaunted beauty. It is possibly as cheap to build types of this kind, rather than the prosaic four-walls, cheap roof and holes in the walls for doors and windows than the substantial Spanish and Mission architecture. This country is adaptable for such buildings. Stone and tile roofs make for warmer houses in winter and cool houses in summer.

There is one kind of artist who conveys his impressions by means of colored paints which he applies to canvas. And there is another artist, who can paint for you just as vivid a picture without the use of either brush or easel. Such a one is John T. Meyer, regular contributor to the Sea Coast Echo. To those who do not know the reason for this paragraph, I recommend the reading of Mr. Meyer's article in last week's Echo. After you have read that short description, answer me this: Could the master of colors have given you a more gripping portrayal of scenes?

To Chas. A. Breath will go the bulk of the credit for the big crowd that will gather in Bay St. Louis on July 26. And those who have ever attempted the management of a big event like the out-board motor races will give of that credit freely. The success of big projects depends upon the quality of their leadership. And from my reading of last week's Echo, the out-board meet on the 26th is already an assured success.

VIEWS OF OUR NEWS

By Chicagoan

Chicago, Ill., July 7.—By the time this is read the Fourth of July Celebration sponsored by Clement R. Bontemps Post of the American Legion will have been history. The event will have past. But for many years the celebration of the nation's birthday staged at Kiln will be remembered by those who attended. They have gained a new respect for the achievements of the ex-service men, who under the able leadership of Laurent Dickson are taking such an active and useful part in the civic and social life of Bay St. Louis.

Few in this world are not forced to work hard for the money that comes into their possession. And one of the most important problems of our lives is the investment of money in a way that it will bring a maximum of happiness and enjoyment. When the members of the Rotary Club met to install their newly elected officers, they also received George H. Edwards as a full fledged member of the body. As time goes on, Mr. Edwards will more and more realize what fine dividends his investment in this fine organization will be bringing him.

These are days that call for men in our legislative halls. You note that I spelled the word with a capital letter. Not ordinary individuals will do for the huge task that awaits the lawmakers of Mississippi and the other states of the Union. That Hancock county is blessed with many men, I have long since learned from my reading of the Echo. And one of those high minded and able individuals is Robert L. Genin, or my reading has been at fault. The Echo commends the candidacy of Mr. Genin for the post to which he aspires. He has the experience, and so far as I'm concerned, the Echo's recommendation of his other qualities would lead me to cast my vote for him, as I'm sure many others will do on election day.

But while the businessmen and farmers of some communities still wait on the action of legislative bodies composed for the most part of men (I spelled that with a lower case "m"), the businessmen of Bay St. Louis have resolved to take action for themselves. Henry Osoinach breathes the spirit of Bay St. Louis, when in his advertisement in last week's paper he urges all to attend the meetings at which the strawberry project will be planned. The farmers and businessmen of the community have learned that their interests are identical. Now they are going to work together for the furtherance of the development of the Coast country, and they are going to accomplish much more than "boards" that sit in Washington and play with the people's money.

To Chas. A. Breath will go the bulk of the credit for the big crowd that will gather in Bay St. Louis on July 26. And those who have ever attempted the management of a big event like the out-board motor races will give of that credit freely. The success of big projects depends upon the quality of their leadership. And from my reading of last week's Echo, the out-board meet on the 26th is already an assured success.

There is one kind of artist who conveys his impressions by means of colored paints which he applies to canvas. And there is another artist, who can paint for you just as vivid a picture without the use of either brush or easel. Such a one is John T. Meyer, regular contributor to the Sea Coast Echo. To those who do not know the reason for this paragraph, I recommend the reading of Mr. Meyer's article in last week's Echo. After you have read that short description, answer me this: Could the master of colors have given you a more gripping portrayal of scenes?

Schools devoted to the teaching of astronomy, mathematics, the ancient mythologies and like subjects have disappeared for the summer, and will not be re-opened until the cooler weather of next fall. But it is in just this case that the parent teacher association, the performers of the various services, the ushering of the health of the children, so that they will have a real chance when they return to school next fall. Parents will hear about this work during the coming week when there will be visitors to the members of the community that is taking place.

BROWN'S VINEYARD IS OLDEST OF KIND ON MISSISSIPPI GULF COAST

By W. D. ROBINSON

Established In 1872—Located Five Miles From Bay St. Louis, Directly on Old Spanish Trail—T. W. Wilcox, North of Pass Christian, Grows Fine Grapes—H. Oliviere, East of Ocean Springs, Achieves Success as Grape Growers—Other Notes of Grape Growing on Gulf Coast.

Growing of grapes can be developed into an important industry on the Mississippi Coast.

Grapes produced on the coast are equal if not superior to those grown in California and other sections of the country.

These statements are backed by the experience of grape growers in the coast region. The grapes now on the vines in coast vineyards furnish proof of their high quality.

Brown's vineyard, located on the Old Spanish Trail, about three and a half miles west of Bay St. Louis, is the oldest and largest vineyard on the coast.

It is owned by Albert C. Brown and is operated by Mr. and Mrs. Brown, who thoroughly understand the grape business.

The arbors of the vineyard cover 23 acres. The place is one of the most beautiful and picturesque on the coast.

Before the days of prohibition high grade wines and champagne were manufactured from scuppernong grapes, but since the dry law went into effect, only the juice of the grapes is being sold.

Scuppernong juice, like the juices of other grapes, is healthful and invigorating. It carries the vitamins of the grapes and is especially beneficial to invalids or sick people.

The Brown place has become famous as a pleasure resort.

Many coast visitors stop there. The vineyard was established in 1872 and has been in the same family ever since. Tourists as well as coast citizens will find it well worth their time to visit the vineyard. It presents a very interesting sight. In addition to the vineyard, Mr. Brown has a colony of alligators and a pond well stocked with fish.

Eight Varieties of Grapes Grow Here

T. W. Wilcox, whose home is on the west side of Wolf River, north of Pass Christian, on Gulfport R. F. D. No. 2, known as the Riverside drive, is another grape grower who has had long experience in that line of work. Mr. Wilcox has grown grapes in other sections of the country, and is unequivocal in his declaration that grapes produced on this coast are equal if not superior to grapes grown in California and other states.

Mr. Wilcox has eight varieties of grapes growing in his vineyard. The vines in the vineyard are now literally loaded with the fruit. He has experimented with many varieties of grapes during the past 12 years and knows from experience the best grapes suitable for the coast. Those contemplating going into the grape business can get valuable information from him. He does not use any commercial fertilizer in his vineyard, having found that manures are the best.

"The soil in this section," Mr. Wilcox said, "is just right for grape culture. I have had experience in grape growing in other States and the soil here is the best of all. The climate here is ideal for grapes."

Mr. Wilcox sold a large quantity of grapes from his vineyard on the Gulfport market last year.

Grapes in Abundance Near Ocean Springs.

H. Oliviere, who has a home on the Old Spanish Trail a few miles east of Ocean Springs, is another citizen who has achieved remarkable success in growing grapes. He experimented with various varieties of table grapes and finally became interested in what he has termed the "Improved Case" grape.

This grape, it appears, was produced by cross-breeding two varieties of grapes that are native of the Northern States, but the grape did not do well in the North. Mr. Oliviere obtained a cutting from the vine and set it out in November, 1926. The following year he gathered 35 pounds of table grapes from the vine. The third year he obtained 600 pounds of grapes and last year the vine produced 1000 pounds. The success of this grape on the coast is attributed solely to the soil and climate.

For a Federal Grape Experiment Station.

The South Mississippi Agricultural Experiment Station at Poplarville has been experimenting with grapes for some time and has developed several varieties that thrive in the coast region. The vines at the station show for themselves the remarkable result that have been accomplished.

The Congress of the United States, at its last session, appropriated money to establish a grape experiment station in what is known as the "Coastal Plain" region of the South. This territory takes in the southern portion of South Carolina, South Georgia, Florida, South Alabama, South Mississippi, South Louisiana, and South Texas. Efforts are being made to secure the location of this new station at Poplarville, in connection with the State Experiment Station. The various Chambers of Commerce and civic organizations of South Mississippi should become active and help the State Experiment Station at Poplarville to get the Federal station. It would benefit this entire section of the State as well as other Coastal Plain States.

Potential Industry For Coast.

Development of the grape industry on a large scale would bring juice extraction plants, bottling works, soft drink factories, preserving plants and other establishments with pay rolls.

That is what the coast needs.

Grapes are fast growing crops.

Vines begin producing the year following planting.

MRS. LOUISE CARRERE WELL-KNOWN HERE, IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Mother of Edward C. Carrere, Waveland Resident, Dies at Home in New Orleans.

A message to The Echo from New Orleans Tuesday morning brought the sad news that Mrs. Louise D. Courte Carrere, widow of E. A. Carrere, had passed away at her home in New Orleans at an early hour that morning after an illness of some duration. She was the widow of one of the most prominent real estate dealers of his time in New Orleans, and owning considerable property on the Waveland beach, which the family still retains.

The deceased was a native of Lafourche parish, La., where her parents were prominent and widely connected. Although since the death of her husband she maintained her legal residence at New Orleans, Mrs. Carrere traveled extensively ever since, visiting Europe, several trips to California and lived much of her time at Edgewater Beach Hotel in Chicago.

Norma Shearer and Clarence Brown, a new star-director combination on the screen, have scored one of the most sensational successes in year. Such is "A Free Soul," adapted from the Adela Rogers St. Johns novel, will be at the A. & G. next week.

The new Metro-Goldwyn Mayer picture shows Miss Shearer in a role as glamourous as sophisticated as those in "Strangers May Kiss" and "Divorcee." But the dramatic element is stronger, and it presents an astounding new insight into the star's amazing versatility.

Clever Direction

Clarence Brown, noted for his "Anna Christie" and such productions, comes in for a great deal of credit, too, for taking a type of drama new to him and making of it one of the sensations of the season.

Miss Shearer plays the daughter of a brilliant though dissolute lawyer who, raising the orphaned girl from childhood, implants in her mind ideas of "freedom" which in the end threaten to wreck her life. Then, in desperate realization, the father bares his own sins in a dramatic appeal to save the child's happiness.

Miss Shearer is ably supported by a brilliant group of players. Leslie Howard gives a finished performance as the millionaire sportsman; Lionel Barrymore scores an outstanding portrayal as the drunken lawyer father; Clark Gable is effective as the gambler; and excellent work is done by James Gleason and Lucy Beaumont, and her demise is sadly deplored.

WAVELAND BASEBALL TEAM GIVES OCEAN SPRINGS CLOSE CALL

Haas, Condon and T. K. Bourgeois Score Three Straight Hits—Other Good Plays.

Ocean Springs had a close call with Waveland's Sentinels to outscore the visitors 5 to 4 in an interesting game. The Cubs got off to a lead in the third inning which was shortly tied when the Sentinels tied the count in the fourth.

Ocean Springs drew away again but Waveland rallied in the eighth with two runs to tie the count and only the Cubs' score in the last half of the eighth when Vancourt doubled toning when Slick Ball led off with a triple and came home behind Ladner's score Endt from firstbase in a close play at the home plate saved the day putting the Bruins' on top the 5-4 count.

Waveland scored in the fourth inning with a timely single by Rager brought forth two markers while the run in the ninth was well earned with three straight hits by Haas, Condon and T. K. Bourgeois.

Ocean Springs' first run in the third came off of two hits by Endt and Allen, but in the fourth Pike Telhiard went wild filling the bases and Condon relieved him Westbrook drew four balls to fore in Baker.

The two runs in the seventh were scored by Westbrook and Vancourt, both in the eighth came the fifth when Endt singled and scored from first on Vancourt's double. The play was close at the home plate.

Barnes kept his hits well scattered except in the ninth when the Sentinels opening the final round with three straight hits. But Barnes tightened down and ended the game with three men on base when Fayard and H. Bourgeois hit the shortstop and Telhiard grounded to the pitcher's box.

COMMENT ON SPORTS BY SHERIDAN

SCHMELING WINS
FIGHTS GREAT BATTLE
AGGRESSIVE THROUGHOUT
STIRLING EARLY ROUNDS
GOES OUT IN FIFTEENTH
WIMBLEDON WINNERS.

Displaying considerably more skill than in the fight with Jack Sharkey, Max Schmeling scored a decisive victory over Stirling at Cleveland, demonstrating to the satisfaction of most observers that Germany has presented the world with a real champion, a fighter willing to wade in, take punishment and give what he has to his opponent.

More evenly matched in physical size than most heavyweight champion contenders the two fighters gave the fans a splendid exhibition. Stirling got away in good shape, scoring an early lead in the first rounds, but all the time the German kept walking into him, piling blows to the body, which had a telling effect in wearing down the Georgian.

Several times in the early part of the battle Stirling gave the German, severe blows, seemingly with all he had, but the Teuton never stopped his forward march. Stirling, later in the fight, resorted to holding, but it must be said for both fighters that the first part of the contest saw a real fight, with both men apparently willing to battle it out between them.

The German displayed supreme confidence and seemed to be sure of himself all the way through. He showed an ability to get to Stirling and to punish him severely in the in-fighting, although at long range, in the first half of the battle, Stirling scored on points.

The spectators saw a good man go to defeat before a fighter that had been in the ninth when the Sentinels opening the final round with three straight hits. But Barnes tightened down and ended the game with three men on base when Fayard and H. Bourgeois hit the shortstop and Telhiard grounded to the pitcher's box.

INDIGESTION

"My work is confining, and often I eat hurriedly, causing me to have indigestion. Gas will form and I will smother and have pains in my chest. I had to be careful what I ate, but after someone had recommended Black-Draught and I found a small pinch after meals was so helpful, I soon was eating anything I wanted.

"Now when I feel the least smothering or uncomfortable bloating, I take a pinch of Black-Draught and get relief."

LOST 20 LBS. OF FAT

IN JUST FOUR WEEKS

Mrs. Mae West of St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I'm only 28 years old and weighed 170 lbs. until taking one box of your Kruschen Salts just 4 weeks ago. I now weigh 160 lbs. I also have more energy and furthermore I've never had a hungry moment."

Fat folks should take one half tea spoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—one 85 cent bottle lasts 4 weeks—You can get Kruschen Salts at any drug store in America. If not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back."

I've learned my lesson, brother, I'll never be a loafer.

But near or far, I'll be the ear,

And she shall be the chaffeur.

—DAVID E. GUYTON

Blue Mountain, Miss.

The modern wife made answer

Unto the lyric loafer,

"Dare do it if you can,

You good-for-nothing gopher."

She baled him out so badly,

He dashed away for distance,

Gave up his logic gladly

And labored with persistence.

The first time that I met him,

I taunted him and teased him.

I told her she would get him

If loafing logic pleased him.

He seemed another fellow.

The cave-man look had faded.

His face was thin and yellow.

His step was slow and jaded.

His very voice was wasted.

His eyes had lost their lustre.

His chastened soul had tasted

The wormwood for his bluster.

I learned my lesson meekly,

Heart-broken there beside him.

I walk to see him weekly,

But soon the sod shall hide him.

Let modern husbands hearken.

"This is the age of woman."

Today the heavens darken.

The female is our foeman.

A PLACE OF INTEREST EVERYONE FROM THIS SECTION SHOULD VISIT

Residents Concerned in Agriculture, Horticulture, Live Stock and Dairying Should Not Fail A Trip to South Mississippi Experiment Station at Poplarville.

By W. D. ROBINSON

Every citizen of the Mississippi Coastal region who is interested in agriculture, horticulture or live stock raising should visit the South Mississippi Experiment Station at Poplarville and the Coastal Plain Experiment Station at McNeill at least once a year.

The State maintains the South Mississippi Experiment Station, which is under the control of the Agricultural and Mechanical College. The Coastal Plain Experiment Station is operated by the Federal government.

The purpose is to determine by actual tests what should be produced in the way of crops, live stock raising, etc., and to determine the best fertilizers for the soil.

The South Mississippi Experiment Station, as its name implies, experiments with all kinds of farm crops, fruit trees, grapes, etc., and selects those that are best for the soil of this section. All grades of fertilizers are also tested in the fields and a record kept of each test for the benefit of farmers. The station is under the supervision of Dr. J. C. Robert, director.

Citizens interested in agriculture, horticulture, live stock, dairying, etc., should visit these stations so they can see the results of experiments. Then they would get first hand information, which not only would enlighten them but would either save them money or point the way for them to make more money.

There is nothing like seeing things. People can get general ideas by reading and studying, but practical experience after all is the best teacher. The experiment stations give regular demonstrations of their work. Growing crops, fruit trees and live stock show for themselves what has been accomplished.

Among other things, the South Mississippi Experiment Station is now experimenting with figs, plums, grapes and peanuts. Some of the best grapes for this section have already been developed and the experiments will continue with other varieties by grafting and cross-breeding. The results of the peanut tests will be known later. Seventy-five varieties of canaries are being tested and the best three varieties will be selected for use.

These experiments or tests by the station save farmers all of that trouble and expense. When the tests are completed, farmers know what to expect.

As Mississippi is fast becoming a dairy State, the work of the Coastal Plain Experiment Station at McNeill is especially important to live stock raisers and dairymen. This station maintains a plant garden for the testing of pasture and hay plants introduced from foreign countries, or new plant varieties, and at times has seed or cuttings of growing plants for distribution to farmers and others interested in making test plantings of seed increases. Distribution is made only on special request and in small amounts, usually to persons who visit the station and see the plants growing.

SPAIN'S WISDOM—PROCEEDING A MULE PACE. About three months ago, Spain voted King Alfonso out of office. Considering the reputation of the Spaniards for hot-headedness, it might have been expected that they would rush from the one extreme of monarchy to the opposite extreme of Bolshevism, but the late elections show no marked tendency in that direction. As a matter of fact, the Communists made a poor showing at the polls. Spain appears ready to import oil, but not politics from Russia. The returns were delayed while the mules plodded down from the mountains with the tabulations. The mule is not a noble animal to symbolize, but Spain has done wisely in proceeding at mule's pace in fixing upon its form of government, especially under the ever-present Soviet pressure.

The president has ordered that the States be permitted to examine Federal Income Tax returns, so that the States may be sure that they are getting all that is coming to them under their own laws. The much boasted Republican efficiency consists mostly in finding an effective way to empty pockets, till and safes. Four years more of Hoover, and Joe's terrible words will apply to a country other than ancient Spain: "That which the palmyworm hath left the locust eaten, and that which the locust eaten, left hath the cankerworm eaten, and that which the cankerworm left hath the caterpillar eaten."

Golf Pro Returns
Home After Visit To Mississippi Gulf Coast

Charley Carr, well-known golf pro of the County Club at Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, who spent a part of the winter and the Spring on the Mississippi Gulf Coast, with Mrs. Carr, recently returned home and writes to friends in Bay St. Louis of the enjoyment of his visit hither in the most glowing terms. He played golf almost daily at beautiful Pine Hills, and the hope is expressed this excellent all-round fellow will again visit here next season.

Among other things, he writes, "We surely enjoyed our stay in the South, and particularly the golf matches with the boys from Bay St. Louis. Remember me to Major Judkins and Mr. C. C. McDonald as well as the others with whom I had the pleasure of playing golf."

Mr. Carr, to use his own expression, says, "the people up here are crazy about golf, everyone is playing the game and a lively and healthy interest in the game is evident."

ANOTHER FOURTH OF JULY PASSES INTO HISTORY

By JOHN T. MEYERS
(For the Sea Coast Echo)

The roar and din of another Fourth of July celebration has come to a close. Merchants will pack away unsold fireworks on shelves for other holiday occasions. Politicians and public speakers have enjoyed their burst of eloquence, and will put aside copies of the Declaration of Independence and patriotic speeches until next year.

On Monday, millions of workers returned to work after a two day holiday due to the Fourth falling on Saturday. In different sections of the United States pleasure seeking throngs enjoyed Fourth of July sports and recreations characteristic of the environment in which they live.

Out in Southwest Texas, rodeos, along with bull fights in several Mexican towns across the Rio Grande held the center of attraction. Highways leading to Old Mexico, as well as trains and bus lines were crowded with Texans enroute to Old Mexico to witness the slaughter of bulls by famous Mexican matadors.

Many, too, were attracted by the lack of prohibition in the land of southern neighbor across the river. These honest American citizens, it seems, wanted to practice some of the life, liberty and pursuit of happiness ideals that our government is supposed to stand for . . . at least on Independence Day.

And whether our good Uncle Sam realizes the fact or not, the Mexican people are very glad to have the thirsty Americans come over the Rio Grande and spend their nice green American pesos for liquor and beer in the Mexican cantinas.

Possibly the Mexican government wonders why our Uncle Sam does not make use of American dollars spent in this fashion to relieve some of the oppressive tax burdens that Americans are forced to bear . . . . But then, what would our gangsters and racketeers do if prohibition were not in effect to support them? Perhaps our sympathetic prohibitionists cannot bear the thought of these murderous, unscrupulous, man-killing agents being forced out of employment and existence . . . .

Anyway, it was a grand and glorious Fourth of July . . . and next Fourth of July would be still grander if all the fanatical prohibitionists could be placed in a bull ring instead of the roaring bulls, and the matadors told to—"strut their stuff."

Small Beginnings Lead To Millions

STORY OF KRAFT CHEESE

A one man—one horse industry in Chicago celebrated its twenty-fifth birthday last week.

A quarter of a century ago, its total capital was $65. Its assets were a sinned, plugging horse, Paddy, the determination of a young Canadian, J. L. Kraft, and an idea.

Today it is the largest cheese business in the world with its sales volume approximately 80 million dollars in 1930.

Its plants extend into more than thirty states, into Canada, Australia, Cuba and England.

Just another example of how America pays tribute to a new idea. The young Canadian introduced the pasteurization of cheese and its marketing in sanitary and convenient form to preserve its uniformity and flavor. He took cheese out of the hunk class and put it into packages.

It was an idea which increased our national per capita consumption of cheese from three pounds ten years ago to almost five pounds last year.

To celebrate this twenty-fifth anniversary, Kraft employees throughout this country and abroad presented him with a bronze plaque showing the homely but determined outlines of the old cheese-horse, Paddy, with the cheese wagon which twenty-five years ago, Mr. Kraft was driving around Chicago streets. The plaque was sculptured by a famous English artist, Diana Thorne.

Recalling the early days of the cheese business in Chicago, Mr. Kraft said, "Two rolls and coffee for my own breakfast and a bag of oats for Paddy and I had to have for my original $65 outlay the second morning I was in Chicago. At the end of the first year we were three thousand dollars in debt in spite of all the trotting Paddy did and all the sales I could make."

"Bad luck certainly followed Paddy and me around for that first year or two. Attempting to increase our sales by the addition of another horse and wagon to the original outfit, I borrowed some money. The second horse died. Paddy fell and broke his leg and misfortune seemed about to terminate the 'biggest cheese business in the world' at the end of a year.

"But about that time, our luck changed. Determination, lots of work, and the faithful ministrations of Paddy enabled us to carry on."

In the Kraft organization, it is more than a horse and wagon—it is a symbol. And it's a national symbol as well. An $80,000,000 horse. And an idea!

MICHELL AND HIS OWN ISSUE

(Gulfport Guide)

As long as Bilbo dropped Franklin for Mitchell at Poplarville Saturday we presume that the political fortunes of our Tax Commissioner are in complete eclipse. Any one with political vision can easily predict Franklin's withdrawal from the race unless he is a "glutton" for punishment and is just sacrificing himself at the hustings. Oscar Johnson, however, eliminated him at the Neshoba Fair a year ago.

The comparative strength of the five candidates, as we see it is—White, Conner, Mitchell, Johnson, Franklin.

As far as we know George Mitchell is as clean a candidate as Bilbo ever laid his hands upon but he runs in this race with a terrible handicap. He carries the stain of this administration with him and even a good man cannot survive the blight of that.

He stands for election as the standard bearer for as dark an administration as we have had since the carpet-baggers sacked us. But for an appointment by Bilbo, and with Bilbo's approval, Mitchell could not have entered the race with the forlorn
